

diary of a MAD HUNGRY WOMAN

This blog is a food journal, my eating adventures mostly in and around Orange County, CA, but stretches to Los Angeles, San Diego and beyond. I am constantly searching for delicious food to eat and nothing is out of bounds, although sometimes it doesn't always end well, nevertheless, it is always an interesting journey

5 best desserts 2014

Posted on December 23, 2014

Everyone knows I'm not big on desserts. In fact, I never leave room for it and am usually happy to skip it all together. Having said that, there are a few sweet treats I am never able to pass up. Ice cream is the number one culprit I can't resist, then, there is panna cotta, followed by sabayon (or zabaglione). Therefore, it is no surprise that all of my five picks of the year are panna cottas. I apologize if some of these items are no longer on the restaurants' current menu.

Shoo-Fly Panna Cotta is my absolute favorite at The Ranch Restaurant & Saloon.

Executive Pastry Chef David Rossi tops it off with crispy streusel, rich dark chocolate balls, while the creamy panna cotta is like heaven on the tongue with hints of molasses finishing off on the palate.

This entry was posted in desserts, Orange County and tagged best desserts, Orange County by Mad Hungry Woman. Bookmark the permalink [<http://madhungrywoman.com/2014/12/23/5-best-desserts-2014/>].